Where will party

Me with one of my first Hosts, Zabrina, on her wedding day!

Post-Jubilee beach trip with Mom.

the take you?

THERE'S NOTHING MORE IMPORTANT TO US than celebrating the success of our incredible Tupperware business owners who love to party for a living. The party can take you wherever you want or need to go. See where the party took Allie Strand-Libersky, a Director in Minneapolis, Minn.

Before Tupperware, I worked full time in human resources, commuting an hour each way. The hours made me miserable, and I was tired of working hard to make someone else look good. I wanted to move to higher positions, but the only way was if someone in my department retired or quit.

As a "TupperKid," I watched my mom, Mary, build her Tupperware business and always dreamed of owning my own. I started 3½ years ago to pay for my wedding. After my first month, I knew that Tupperware was not a job for me—it was my next career! In six months, I was able to pay for our wedding AND the honeymoon.

I now make a fantastic income, am in complete control of my schedule, and I'm rewarded and recognized for the work that I do. I've received two amazing, all-expense-paid trips, paid off student loans, bought a new car, made home improvements and made new friends;

I've earned two amazing, all-expense-paid trips, paid off student loans, bought a new car, made home improvements and made new friends

I was even a bridesmaid in the wedding of one of my first Hosts, and I hadn't met her until I walked in the door of her party! This business has completely changed my life.

I love the opportunity to work with other women who have built amazing businesses and who want to help my team and I do the same. This company empowers women to change their lives, and I am blessed to be a part of that. My only wish is that I had started working my business years earlier!

*share
your gifts*

Sweet little moments add up to a lifetime of cherished memories. This season, Tupperware makes it so easy to bake up something special and share those gifts in durable, reusable containers.

"When I started my Tupperware business, it was just a hobby. But as soon as I earned my first trip—to Hollywood!—I was hooked. Last April I earned the Mustang, and in June I qualified to drive the Acadia. I'd never had a new car, and now I drive two! What keeps me going is helping other people achieve the very same things that I have and being able to make everything revolve around my family."

YOUTH OF THE YEAR

Tupperware Brands

In the past five years alone, Hosts and customers like YOU have helped our Sales Force Members raise over $2.4 million for the Tupperware Brands Foundation, supporting organizations like the Boys & Girls Clubs of America and their premier youth recognition program, Youth of the Year.

Kiana Knolland's time as the 2013-14 National Youth of the Year is drawing to a close, and she just completed her freshman year at Howard University. Going away to school is hard enough, but Kiana also made time to make tons of media appearances and speak to and inspire other young people. "I couldn't have been more excited to represent the 4 million youth that the Boys & Girls Clubs of America annually serve. My ultimate goal has been to inspire others," says Kiana.

change lives for the better

Her advice to the next Youth of the Year is to “RELAX. You’ve spent so much time preparing. This opportunity has been awarded to you because of your hard work. Now is the time to build relationships, especially with the other regional finalists. My favorite part of the whole experience was getting to know the other finalists. You should want the best for them just as you do for yourself.”

Kiana is enjoying her time at Howard University and making the most of its location: Washington D.C. In addition to enjoying the arts and culture, she’s even begun an internship at the United States Capitol.
